

Richard Parker; Online Illustrated ZOOM talk

'Buildings of Exeter'

7pm Friday 5th February 2021

FREE ZOOM EVENT

Join us for this 1 hour online talk for a fascinating exploration of the treasure trove of historic buildings of Exeter. Richard will examine different types of domestic buildings, their plan forms and architectural character, in urban and suburban areas of the city, from the Middle Ages until about 1800. We will learn about how buildings can develop disguises which hide their true character, and how you can unmask ancient buildings masquerading as modern ones.

Richard Parker is an archaeologist, researcher, and writer in the field of historic buildings. He is also well known for his closely-researched reconstruction drawings of historic townscapes, monastic, and domestic buildings. He has spent many years recording local houses, churches, and other buildings, as a freelance archaeologist and artist for clients including: The National Trust, Exeter Cathedral and Jesus College, Cambridge.
